Music Notes for August 10:

#388 "O worship the King, all glorious above!" This hymn was written by Sir Robert Grant, a Scottish Anglican who, because of his father's association with the East India Company, was born in India in 1779. Both father and son served as members of Parliament and directors of the East India Company. Robert wrote this hymn in 1833, a year before being appointed Governor of Bombay, a position that he held until his death. This hymn was inspired by a 16th century hymn by William Kethe – a hymn that was, in turn, inspired by Psalm 104. If you read Psalm 104 alongside the words of this hymn, you will find several correspondences. The first two verses of the hymn celebrate God's glory. The last two verses celebrate God's love and providence. God's greatness and God's loving providence go together.

#414 "God, my King, thy might confessing" author Richard Mant, son of the Rev. Richard Mant, Master of the Grammar School, Southampton, was born at Southampton, Feb. 12, 1776. He was educated at Winchester and Trinity, Oxford. At Oxford he won the Chancellor's prize for an English essay, was a Fellow of Oriel, and for some time College Tutor. On taking Holy Orders he was successively curate to his father, then of one or two other places, Vicar of Coggeshall, Essex, 1810; Domestic Chaplain to the Archbishop of Canterbury, 1813, Rector of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate, London. 1816, and East Horsley, 1818, Bishop of Killaloe, 1820, of Down and Connor, 1823, and of Dromore, 1842. He was also Bampton Lecturer in 1811. He died Nov. 2, 1848. His prose works were numerous, and although now somewhat obsolete, they were useful and popular in their day.

#636 John Rippon was pastor of Carter's Lane Baptist Church in London for more than half a century. Rippon loved hymns, and his hymnal, A Selection of Hymns from the Best Authors, became a best-seller among Baptist churches in England and America. You would think that a title touting "Best Authors" would be careful to acknowledge the author's names. However, this hymn — "How Firm a Foundation" — had only the initial K where the author's name should be. We think that the author was Robert Keene, the music director for Rippon's congregation — but we can't be sure. In most hymnals, quotation marks enclose all the words except verse 1, that is because most of the words are quoted from the Bible. The hymn relates a series of Godly assurances. "Fear not, I am with thee," it says — and then promises, "When through fiery trials thy pathways shall lie, my grace, all sufficient, shall be thy supply." This has been an exceedingly popular hymn. At Robert E. Lee's request, it was sung at his funeral. It was also one of Theodore Roosevelt's favorites, and was sung at his funeral. But it shouldn't be reserved for funerals, because its assurance of God's help meets our needs through every chapter of our lives.

All announcements for weekly bulletin need to be submitted by noon on Wednesdays to Julie to make that Sunday's announcement/bulletin page.

From the Lot Development Committee:

The Lot Development Committee had a pre-announced meeting on Saturday, July 12th. All members were not able to attend, however, we had a quorum so were able to make decisions about working with Little Alan Battle on the labyrinth (which is part of the overall lot development project). Meredith Battle was able to get the sand and rock donated that is being used to help build the new walkway. We are thankful for this gift. Mel Potts is a great asset on this committee. He has let Alan use his heavy equipment and has worked side by side with Alan and our brick layer Jesus Rios-Marsales. Having Mel's front loader helped Alan remove the bricks so much faster than having to remove them by hand. We are grateful for Mel's gifts! We have kept all Lot Development committee members informed via email of progress being made on lot development. Another scheduled meeting for the committee will be announced soon. We plan to select a Sunday after church to meet in an effort to have all members present at the meeting. If anyone has any questions or suggestions concerning the lot development then please let me hear from you and I will present it to the Lot Development Committee.

Many Thanks, Myra Southerland-Lot Development Committee Chair
